Princeton, Ky., March 13.-Important in its present effects and its future possibilities was the victory won here to-day when Judge Fleming Gordon reversed his decision in the case of the Imperial Tobacco ty. Company against several fire insurance companies and decided that a jury must try the action. He based to the demurrer of the Imperial Company filed to-day by Bernard Flexner (6) of Louisville, who, with Charles Shield, of Louisville, is counsel for the insurance companies. He had decided last week that the companies must pay the Imperial Company, which is the British end of the To-Main Etreet: bacco Trust, $40,000 for damages done by night riders who burned warehouses here in September, 1906. The incandescent electric lamp is, at first sight, one of the most commonly known and simplest devices with which we have to deal. The lamp in general use is labeled sixteen candle power, and the average user of these lamps is generally contented with the mere knowledge of how to turn his light on and off, and does not trouble himself much as to the economical use of his lamps further than to turn them off when they are not needed. He will undoubtedly grumble at times at the amount of his monthly bill for lighting, and will often be inconvenieneed by the dimness of some of his lamps, but the deficiency in light is made good by turning on another lamp, and the monthly bill is further increased. It would probably never occur to him that it would be an actual economy in dollars and eents to throw away his old lamps and provide new ones at his own expense; and yet such is the ease.

As simple a device as the ineandescent electric lamp appears to be, it really requires considerable care and study to realize from it the maximum amount of light for the least money. Take the sixteen ean-

JAMES H. TRAVIS.

A Tribute of Respect by Rev. Jas. F. Price.

There are several reasons why I should offer this tribute of respect to the revered name of l'nele llarvey Travis. During the period of my childhood and youth he was one of our nearest neighbors and was constantly associated with us in the pleasant relation of neighborship. Being a close relative, increased my esteem for him and his interest in us. He was my teacher during one term of school, and the principles he implanted in my life are living today. Uncle Harvey was the friend who went with me to Marion when I got my first certificate to teach school, and through his snavity and tact that certificate was procured without an examination. In my early religions life he was my adviser and helpselar and friend, sympathizing with me in my trials and rejoicing in my I'ncle Harvey was of that stordy Scotch-Irish stock that stock which has furnished to this country so many pioneers, penetrating the wilderness and preparing it for our delightful abode -- that stock which has bedeeked the galaxy of fame with such worthy names as Paul Jones, Commodore Perry, Andrew Jackson, Winfield Scott, Zachary Taylor, 17 S. Grant, Stonewall Jackson, Geo. B. McClellan, Alexander Hamilton, John C. Calboun, Jas. G. Blaine, Jefferson Davis, Thomas Beuton, John G. Carlisle, Mark Hanna, Wm. McKinley, Andrew Carnegie, John Henry Watterson. This shows that he came of no ignoble stock.

He was a man of fine common sense He delighted in reading and was a man well informed for his day

He was the father of e large family, eighteen children in all, yet their devotion to him was evidence of his splendid paternal character. This was shown by their annual gathering on his birthday, the 5th day of December. On this day his children, grand-children and greatgrand children would gather from different counties, spread a feast and refresh this aged progenitor with a day of social conversation and dehe most profound laymen I have ever met. He delighted in the Bible March, and studied it earnestly. He was independent in his thought and when he came from his study with an opinion it was worth hearing.

He professed religion at Piney Fork camp ground when a young man. He was at his aunt Silva Foster's and heard them talking about him and became cenvicted. Barney Clinton took him out to seeret prayer and thus his convictions billionsness, constipation and malaria.

Sugar Grove church was organized he became one of its ruling elders When Cave Spring church was organized he transferred his membership thither. His peculiar gifts gave him great power in church service. He was a line singer and able in prayer, gifted in speech and efficient in every line of church work. He had strong appetites and passions with which to contend; yet he fought the battle buvely and was rowned with the laurels of victory. Inheriting a strong appetite for ar dent spirits and with his genial social turn, it was a struggle to keep ry Agee last Monday. his lips from the sparkling cup, but in the last months of his life anything intoxicating was interly repuguant to him. He had a very strong, high temper. It was easy, under provocation, for him to lose control of himself and say and do things that seem shocking to us in our sober moments; but in the last few years of his life he seemed to have perfect control of his temper and was calm and deliberate under the most fretting circumstances. A life-long slave to tobacco in the last few months of his life he laid it aside as easily as a child does a worn out toy when something new is presented. In fact he told the writer at different times before his death that nothing now gave him any trouble, that every foe was laid low at his feet, that every appetite and passion was completely subdued, that Hughes. material things had no attraction for him, but that the heavenly mansions would sweep in his view as a promised sequel of the toils and hardships of life, Like a ripe shock of corn he came to his death sweetened in grace and enriched in spiritual power. It was no hardship for him to die. Like Elijah he smote the flood of Jordan with the mantle of faith, the waters rolled back he walked into his celestial mausion high accompanied by a convoy of angels for which so many have heard him pray. In the strength of immortal youth he future home. now walks the golden streets and sweeps his glittering lyre with the of going to Missouri. sweet symphonies of heaven.

of two western spares, 210 feet. The foundation stone of the cathe draf was faid by the Rev. William Croly, 11 11, the one hundred and tiftly successor of St. Patrick in the see of Arningh. Over the front door of the cathedral is the inscription, "Soll Dec-Omnipotenti, Trino in Personis, Sute Invocentione Sti Patritii, Hibernorum Apostell," which Anglified rends, "To the One God Aimighty, Three In Persons, Under the Invocation of St. Patrick. Apostle of Ireland." The memories of close upon tifteen centuries cling around the old cathedraf established by St. Patrick. It was ravaged and burned by the Danes, subsequently by the Anglo-Normans and was almost entirely destroyed by fire lu 1404. In tack the primate of Ireland preached in the cathedral before Shane O'Nell! and 600 of his soldiers. In his sermon he recommended layuity to the English king, which so enraged O'Nelll that he burned the cathedral and pillaged the city of Armagh. Another chief of the same clan, Sir Phelim O'Neill, set tire to the cuthedral in 1642.

The following translated extract from the "Itook of the Angel," embodied in the larger "Book of Armagh," preserved in the Royal Irish academy. Dublin, gives an account of the miraculous manner in which the city of Armagh and its cathedral were founded "Once upon a time St. Patrick proceeded from Arnsigh to bajdize, teach and cure multitudes of both sexes of the luman race, whom he expected to meet by the well lying close to the place of his abode on the eastern side There, before the dawning of the day he awnited the arrival of the people from all directions who desired : knowedge of the faith. As he the walted, suddenly heavy sleep overcome him, as previously he had been wearled out by night vigils for Christ

"And, behold, quickly came an augto him from heaven and roused hi lightly from sleep. And St. Patrisaid: 'Here I am. Have I done as iniquitons thing lately in the sight of the Most High? If this has been so
